BROKE HIS LEG.

Capt. Robert Porper Met with Unfortunate Accident.

Vessel Has Fine Fare After Long Stormy Trip.

Badly iced up, with rigging, hull and deck thickly coated in a armor of cold shimmering white, the sch. Arbutus came up the harbor this morning and was forced through the ice by a tow boat to the American Halibut Company's wharf.

The vessel had a fine fare of halibut, but in his berth in the cabin lay Capt. Robert Porper, suffering with a broken ieg. As soon as the vessel reached the wharf, a hack was secured and he was removed to the Addison Gilbert Hospital.

The trip had been a long, hard one, nothing but a continuous spell of the worst kind of weather, gales and storms, snow storms and frigid spells with the glass way below zero. For weeks at a time there would be not a day when a dory could be put over the side to fish. When a set was had plenty of fish were found but it was only at rare intervals that the trawls could be put out. On the southern edge of Grand Bank, a fine fare of 26,000 pounds of halibut was picked up and with this the craft started for home.

The accident to Capt. Porper happened last Saturday. The crew were shaking a reef out of the mainsail and one of the stops caught. Capt. Porper jumped on the boom and cleared it and then started to jump back the same way. As he did so, the boom gave a slap and he came down on the other side of it, landing on the wheel box and doubling one of his legs under him, breaking it between the knee and ankle. He was taken to the cabin and everything possible done for him, while the crew forced the vessel for home so that surgical aid might be secured as soon as possible.

Capt. Porper reports speaking schs. Theodore Roosevelt and Squanto and his fare sold to the American Halibut Company at 12 cents per pound for white and 10 cents for gray.

At the hospital, a careful examination showed that the bone of the leg was fractured near the ankle.

BEAM TRAWLER STARTLE SUNK.

Went Down Tuesday off Brenton Reef Lightship.

CREW BELONGED AT THIS PORT

Craft Had Been Previously Damaged by Ice Floe.

The little beam trawling sloop Startle of Boston, formerly of this port, sank off Brenton's Reef lightship at 5.30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, about three miles south of Beaver Tail.

The crew of the craft, when they found she was going down, took to the dory. They had only one pair of oars, but they took turns at pulling and reached Newport late Tuesday evening, with the thermometer at zero. Yesterday morning Capt. James Miller made his report at the customhouse and left for Boston.

The Startle was a beam trawler and an able boat. Her hull had been injured by floating ice. The heavy weather off the lightship opened the seams and she made water rapidly. The captain and crew, who belong in this city saved only the clothes in which they stood.

The Startle fitted out for beam trawling at this port a few months ago, and was the only American craft engaged in this line of fishing.

Capt. Augustus Miller and the crew, Patrick Marr, Andrew Made and Edward Parks, arrived home this morning.

They report that they were engaged in hauling the beam trawl, and on going below, found the water over the lockers. This was the first they knew that the craft was leaking, so suddenly did she spring a leak.

They took to the pumps and headed the craft for Newport. She continued to fill, however, and they were forced to jump in the dory and leave her. So quickly did she fill that in 20 minutes from the time they noticed the leak she went down.

STRUCK IT RICH.

Little Sch. Valentinna Got High Price at T Wharf.

The little sch. Valentinna, Capt. Charles Neal, of this port, struck a Klondike at T wharf, Boston, yesterday afternoon. She warped into the dock heavily encased in ice but the crew didn't mind that for there were 12,000 pounds of nice new codfish in the hold and the buyers were fish hungry. The fare was sold right through for $5.90 per hundred weight.

Portland Fish News.

The price of fish on Thursday was the highest of the winter. No trips came into this port on account of the ice-bound conditions along the coast, so no price was made, but if any had arrived it is probable that prices about the same as Boston would have been paid. The three trips which came in late Wednesday were sold for $5.50, which is the record for Portland this year.

J. W. Trefethen, the Commercial street fish house, received a telephone message from Harpswell yesterday morning saying that the entire fishing fleet there, and it is a large one, was frozen fast in the ice, and there was no means of telling when the different craft would be released. This takes out a number of the best fishermen from the available fleet and serves to make the fish scarcer as the size of the fishing fleet is materially reduced and of course the price must climb higher. To what altitudes the price of fish will ascend if the present conditions continue, is a question which the dealers are unable to state.

Big Stocks.

Sch. Kentucky, Capt. Elroy Prior, stocked $1950 on her recent haddocking trip.

Sch. Admiral Dewey, Capt. Rufus McKay, stocked $1400 on her recent haddocking trip.
